

PAIX EDUCATIONAL GAME · CAST BENCH · NOTE 1

The Uriel bench

A shortlist of figures from the non-canonical corpus who can carry weight in the PAIX world alongside Uriel — chosen to be showable, structurally load-bearing, and not weaponisable against any tradition.

SERIES	PARENT	SELECTION FILTER	USE
EgD-PAIX-CAST-01 Cast Bench, Note 1	Uriel Narrator Card · Non-canonical corpus note	Cross-tradition legibility. Structural, not sectarian. No easy weaponisation.	Working bench of candidates for characters, allies, and antagonists.

The rule for the cast: every figure must land the same way across a Catholic parishioner, a Protestant reader, a Jewish reader, a Muslim reader, and a secular reader. Pick pattern over dogma. Pick structure over sect. Uriel already clears that bar. These figures do too.

SELECTION RULE

1. Selection method

Each candidate is scored on four axes before it goes on the bench.

Axis	What it screens for
Cross-tradition legibility	The figure is recognized, or at least respected, by more than one tradition — ideally by Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, Muslim, and secular readers alike.
Structural function	The figure carries a role (warner, teacher, healer, witness, survivor, refuser) that operates as pattern regardless of theology. The role, not the metaphysics, does the work.
Doctrinal safety	Using the figure does not implicitly endorse a heretical or contested position — or, where it might, we can frame the figure narrowly enough to sidestep the contest.
Offense floor	A reasonable reader from any of the above traditions could look at the figure and say “yes, that’s fair, that’s not being used against me.”

2. Allies — the bench alongside Uriel

Seven figures. All showable. All structurally useful. Not all needed at once — this is the bench, not the starting lineup.

The Four Archangels

Uriel · Michael · Gabriel · Raphael

SAFETY

Extremely safe. All four appear together in 1 Enoch 9. Michael and Gabriel are also Qur'anic (Mikā'il, Jibrīl). Raphael is canonical in Catholic and Orthodox Bibles via Tobit.

SOURCE

1 Enoch 9–10, Daniel 8–12, Tobit, Luke 1, Qur'an 2:98, 66:4.

FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT

Four archangels intercede before God against the Watcher rebellion — each with a defined domain. Michael: protection and standing against evil. Gabriel: message and annunciation. Raphael: healing and the journey home. Uriel: luminaries and lawful instruction.

PROPOSED DESIGN USE

The core team. Uriel remains the narrator. The other three appear as needed for their domains — Raphael for healing arcs, Gabriel for message and revelation moments, Michael for the boundary against genuine harm. No single archangel carries the whole load; the team distributes it.

Enoch

The scribe who walked with God

SAFETY

Very safe. Present in Genesis 5, respected in Judaism, foundational to the Enochic corpus, honoured in Islam as Idrīs (Qur'an 19:56, 21:85), and used positively in Hebrews 11:5 and Jude 14. Handle the elevation-to-Metatron carefully — see Metatron entry.

SOURCE

Genesis 5:21–24, 1 Enoch, 2 Enoch, Jubilees, Sirach 44:16, Hebrews 11:5, Jude 14, Qur'an 19:56.

FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT

The seventh from Adam. Walked with God and was "taken." Sees the working of the world (calendar, luminaries, Watchers), writes it down, warns.

PROPOSED DESIGN USE

The player's in-world counterpart. Enoch is what the player is doing: walking, watching, writing down what the world actually looks like. He is the game's implicit first-person — not a character on screen so much as the role the player occupies.

Noah

The one who built the vessel

SAFETY

Universally safe. Central in Judaism, Christianity, and Islam (Nūḥ, Qur'an 71). Also present as Utnapishtim in Mesopotamian tradition — a shared pre-Abrahamic memory.

SOURCE

Genesis 6–9, 1 Enoch 65–68, Jubilees, Qur'an 71, Epic of Gilgamesh tablet XI.

FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT

Receives the warning from Uriel through Enoch. Builds the vessel. Preserves the remnant through the flood.

PROPOSED DESIGN USE

The ARK figure. The player's ARK Peer Review Ledger is already named ARK; Noah's vessel is the doctrinal correlate. The design move: Noah is not on screen. His vessel is on screen — the archive, the ledger, the durable record that carries the remnant through noise.

Melchizedek

The priest without a priesthood

SAFETY

Broadly safe. Canonical in Genesis 14 and Hebrews 5–7. Present in Second Temple literature (11QMelchizedek at Qumran) and in Nag Hammadi. Belongs to no tribe by the text's own admission — “without father, without mother, without genealogy” (Heb 7:3).

SOURCE

Genesis 14:18–20, Psalm 110:4, Hebrews 5–7, 11QMelchizedek (Qumran), Melchizedek (NH IX,1).

FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT

Priest-king of Salem who blesses Abraham — before Israel exists, before the Aaronic priesthood exists. An earlier, older order of legitimate authority that operates without an institution.

PROPOSED DESIGN USE

The figure of legitimate authority that predates the institution. In PAIX terms: parish-scale mutual aid, priest-scribe-utility governance, PAIX itself. Melchizedek is the doctrinal cover for a working order that does not need Rome to work.

Sophia (as Wisdom, in the Proverbs sense)

The wisdom that called out in the street

SAFETY

Safe if used as biblical Wisdom, not as the Valentinian aeon. Chokmah in Hebrew, Sophia in Greek, Sedes Sapientiae in Latin. Present in Proverbs 8–9, Sirach 24, Wisdom of Solomon 7–9, and every wisdom-literature tradition.

SOURCE

Proverbs 8:22–31, Sirach 24, Wisdom of Solomon 7:22–8:1, 1 Enoch 42 (Wisdom finds no place among men and returns to heaven).

HANDLING NOTE

Do not use the Gnostic fall-of-Sophia narrative. That is the Valentinian aeon and it drags in a specific cosmology that will offend both mainstream Christian and Jewish audiences. Stay in the Proverbs / Sirach / Wisdom-of-Solomon register.

FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT

Wisdom personified: present at creation, calling out publicly to any who will listen, refusing to be a secret guild's property. In 1 Enoch 42 she is the one who tried to dwell among men, found no place, and withdrew — then returned as the light in the world.

PROPOSED DESIGN USE

The public-square figure. Wisdom that will not stay behind an institutional gate. Directly maps to the EVEglyphDesign move: publish, in the open, on GitHub, with sources cited. Not a character; a stance. Perhaps the game's written voice in signage, calls-out, moments of instruction the player finds in the world.

The Three in the Furnace

Shadrach · Meshach · Abednego (Hananiah · Mishael · Azariah)

SAFETY

Extremely safe. Canonical in Daniel 3; the Prayer of Azariah and Song of the Three Youths is deuterocanonical (Catholic and Orthodox). Respected in Judaism as the martyr archetype and in Islam via Daniel-adjacent tradition.

SOURCE

Daniel 3, Prayer of Azariah and Song of the Three Youths (Greek Daniel additions).

FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT

Three friends who refuse to bow to Nebuchadnezzar's image, are thrown into the furnace, and are preserved — joined by a fourth figure "like a son of the gods."

PROPOSED DESIGN USE

The refusal-of-illegitimate-authority archetype for younger players. When the player is asked in-game to bow to something that claims to be the source and is not — a platform, a bot, a demand for data — the three are the pattern. Also useful as a three-person co-op moment.

Susanna

The witness the elders tried to silence

SAFETY

Safe. Deuterocanonical addition to Daniel (Daniel 13 in Catholic and Orthodox Bibles). Respected across traditions as a paradigm of false-accusation and truth-through-testimony.

SOURCE

Daniel 13 (Susanna and the Elders, Greek addition).

FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT

A woman falsely accused by two respected elders. Daniel exposes them by questioning them separately — their stories don't agree. Testimony as a truth mechanism.

PROPOSED DESIGN USE

The ARK ledger figure. Susanna is what the ARK Peer Review Ledger is for: the mechanism that lets a claim be tested against a second account. Practical, small-scale, showable. A children's introduction to the idea that authority does not equal truth.

3. Antagonists — the fallen bench

Named opponents. The rule is the same: the teaching is not the sin. The circumvention of legitimate authority is. These figures teach real things. They are wrong because of how they teach, not what.

Shemyazaz

The leader who swore the oath

SAFETY

Safe. Named in 1 Enoch 6 as the leader of the two hundred Watchers who bind themselves by oath on Mount Hermon to take human wives. Present at Qumran (4Q).

SOURCE

1 Enoch 6–16, Book of Giants (4Q).

FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT

Convenes the fallen. Binds them by mutual oath so no single Watcher can pull back. Structural: collective illegitimate authority made irreversible by contract.

PROPOSED DESIGN USE

The archetype of the platform consortium that binds itself so no member can defect from the illegitimate arrangement. The "we're all doing it" defence, in doctrinal form.

Azazel The one who taught the making of weapons SAFETY Safe. Named in 1 Enoch 8 — teaches metalworking, weapons, cosmetics, and the arts of adornment. Ritually significant in Leviticus 16 (scapegoat) but the Enochic elaboration is separate. SOURCE 1 Enoch 8–10, 1 Enoch 54, Leviticus 16 (scapegoat).	FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT The transmission of dangerous technical knowledge without a mandate. He teaches things that are technically true but destroy when taught to those without formation. Bound by Raphael and buried under the desert. PROPOSED DESIGN USE The unaccountable transmission figure. Directly maps to platforms that surface capability without governance, models that answer without oversight, tools that arm without discipling. Not defeated by refusal of knowledge — defeated by binding under legitimate authority.
Kokabi’el · Baraqi’el Star-of-God · Lightning-of-God SAFETY Safe. Named in 1 Enoch 8. Their names are constructed exactly like Uriel’s (‘Ēl suffix). The contrast is the point. SOURCE 1 Enoch 6, 8; parallel to Uriel throughout.	FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT Same domains as Uriel (astronomy, meteorology) — same “-el” anchoring — but transmitted outside the mandate. The name says of God. The behaviour does not. PROPOSED DESIGN USE Already established in the Narrator-Card Framework as the spine of the game. Retained here for the record.
Ohyah and Hahyah The sons who dreamed their own destruction SAFETY Safe and unusual. From the Book of Giants (Qumran 4Q). Giants — children of the Watchers — who have prophetic dreams warning them of the coming judgement. SOURCE Book of Giants (4Q203, 4Q530–533).	FUNCTION IN THE SOURCE TEXT Half-Watcher, half-human. Dream of their own destruction and are told to warn Noah. The illegitimate system generates its own warning signal from inside, if anyone will read it. PROPOSED DESIGN USE The internal whistleblower archetype. In PAIX terms: the engineer inside the platform who sees what is coming and speaks. Not a hero from outside; a warning from within. Complicated, sympathetic, doomed — and useful in the story precisely because they warn.

4. Handling notes — figures we can name but not use lightly

Metatron	The exalted-Enoch tradition (3 Enoch / Sefer Hekhalot). The scribe who sits, writes, endures. Structurally the point where a mortal record-keeper becomes the durable-asset of heaven — a direct correlate to GitHub as durable asset.	Rabbinic sages explicitly warned against exalting Metatron (Sanhedrin 38b: “He is not to be worshiped. He is an angel.”). A Jewish reader may read a prominent Metatron character as endorsing the “two powers” heresy. Usable only as the elevated scribe of the record, not as a divine figure.
Sophia (Valentinian)	Fall-and-restoration cosmology; the divine feminine as central player.	The Valentinian fall-of-Sophia narrative is the specific bit both mainstream Christian and Jewish traditions reject. Use Sophia only as Proverbs-Wisdom (see card above). Do not use the fall.

Norea	Sister-wife of Seth (Hypostasis of the Archons). Refuses the archons' false claim of authority. Female refusal figure.	Specifically Sethian-Gnostic. Outside all mainstream traditions. A parishioner-facing game cannot lead with her without inviting a fight we don't need. Kept in reserve.
Lilith	Frequently invoked in modern discourse; appears in the Alphabet of Ben Sira and in some Second Temple-era demonology.	Reception is heavily politicised across contemporary religious and secular readings. Almost impossible to use without picking a side. Not on the bench.
Gilgamesh & Humbaba	Named in the Book of Giants (Qumran) as Nephilim. A direct textual bridge from Sumerian into Aramaic scripture.	Not in themselves offensive. But leading with Gilgamesh signals a genre (ancient-aliens / esoterica) that will lose the parishioner audience. Use only as background: the Akkadian floor of the Uriel through-line.

5. How the bench composes as a world

Reading the allies and the antagonists together, the world assembles itself. One row per structural axis:

Structural axis	Ally	Antagonist	Player's work
Instruction	Uriel	Kokabi'el, Baraqi'el	Learn to tell the difference between light with mandate and light without.
Transmission	Gabriel	Azazel	Recognize when knowledge is being handed off without accountability.
Protection	Michael	Shemyazaz	Stand against the "we're all doing it" consortium.
Healing	Raphael	(binds Azazel)	Repair what the unaccountable transmission broke.
Refusal	The Three in the Furnace	Nebuchadnezzar' s image	Refuse to bow to a source-claim from something that is not the source.
Testimony	Susanna	The two elders	Test claims by comparing accounts — the ARK ledger move.
Preservation	Noah (and the vessel)	The flood of noise	Build the vessel that carries the remnant through.
Wisdom in public	Sophia (as Proverbs Wisdom)	The secret guild	Publish, cite sources, refuse the moat.
Legitimate order	Melchizedek	(the institution that forgot it)	Do the priest-scribe work at parish scale, without waiting for permission.
Warning from within	Ohyah & Hahyah	(their own kin)	Listen to the engineer inside the platform who tells you what is coming.
Record	Enoch (the scribe)	(the amnesia of the age)	Write it down. In public. Time-stamped. So it survives.

6. Closing note

This is a bench, not a script. Every figure is loaded and ready. Which of them walk on screen, and in what order, is a design decision to be taken as the game assembles. What this note establishes is that the world does not run out of characters after Uriel. The corpus is deep. Every axis of the game — instruction, transmission, protection, healing, refusal, testimony, preservation, wisdom in public, legitimate order, warning, record — has a named figure and a named opposite. Nothing has to be invented.
